

LONGBRIDGE WORKS, BIRMINGHAM—1936.

THE details given in the following pages have been reduced to a minimum for the sake of clarity, but every endeavour has been made to anticipate the information required by Guardians and applicants.

The Company will be pleased to furnish any further information which is desired. Communications should be addressed to The Supervisor of Apprentices.

We cannot too strongly emphasize that just as the Company seeks to make Apprenticeship at these Works of lasting value to a youth throughout his later career, so we in turn ask and require a high standard of character and knowledge that will reflect credit upon the Company and its organization in whichever part of the world our Ex-Apprentices may find themselves.

H. Austin